Managed services and the future of higher education

What is a managed services model?

Managed services provides ongoing management and monitoring of digital solutions. So instead of your institution's in-house team managing that burden, a managed service provider like Hyland performs the tasks on your behalf.

Unlike technical support — which, in many cases, is a reactive but necessary type of break-fix service — managed services is inherently proactive. As a result, managed services becomes a partnership between your school's IT staff and the services organization, augmenting your in-house capabilities with Hyland's.
